The Department of Biochemistry invites applications from individuals interested in teaching the following undergraduate course in the Winter 2018 semester. Subject to budgetary restrictions and sufficient enrolments, appointments will be made on a course by course basis and will not entail any obligation to conduct research or to perform any administrative service for Memorial University. Appointments will be made in accordance with the provisions in the MUN-LUMUN Collective Agreement. Course design and evaluation methods for all courses will be in accordance with Biochemistry department regulations and the Memorial University Calendar.

Course Title: Biochemistry 3108 – Molecular Biochemistry of the Cell

Course Schedule: Slot 02 (9:00-9:50am Mon•Wed•Fri).

Campus Location: St. John’s

Course Description: 3108 Molecular Biochemistry of the Cell focuses on the molecular biochemistry of intracellular regulation, including advances in topics such as signal transduction, apoptosis and cancer. Other topics will include protein processing and sorting, cyclins, G-protein structure, function and regulation, cell adhesion molecules and the structure of the extracellular matrix. Team-teaching is a common practice in the Department of Biochemistry and this position (one section only) may be offered to one or more instructors on a shared basis.

Qualifications: A M.Sc. with a research focus in an area of molecular biology and genetics is required. Applicants who have completed a PhD are preferred. Experience with teaching this subject matter is an asset.

To apply for this position, please submit a letter of application, curriculum vitae and the names of referees, electronically or in writing, to:
