Newfoundland and Labrador Residency Definition

The following criteria will be used to determine residence status – measured from September 1 in the year in which admission is sought.

The place of residence for students is normally presumed to be the province in which the home of the parent is located; individuals will be deemed residents of Newfoundland and Labrador if they:

• are currently residing or permanent address in the province and attended school for five years during primary to high school inclusive; or

• are currently working full-time in the province for two years continuously not attending a post-secondary educational institution; or

• are currently residing or permanent address in the province for two years continuously because of family relocation, e.g., of parent or spouse; or

• are currently residing or permanent address in the province for at least one year and have obtained Canadian Permanent Resident Status while residing in the province.

Applicants who are living or have lived in Newfoundland and Labrador and do not meet these criteria will be reviewed on an individual basis.
