

The Henrietta Harvey Week

October 7th-10th, 2008

This was an active week, preceded by the first Public Lecture by Peter Trnka, the first discussion in the new HOTopics series, the Humanities conference in the M.Phil. program and our visitor, Markus Enders, from Freiburg. For a more detailed listing of the talks click here.

The week began with Mathieu Marion, the Henrietta Harvey Lecturer, giving a colloquium talk on Tuesday October 7th and the Harvey lecture on Wednesday evening.

Thursday afternoon, October 9th Chinatsu Kobayashi gave a colloquium on Collingwood's aesthetics (Collingwood was the focus of the Harvey lecture as well) and that evening Michael Ruse gave a colloquium on Darwin's contemporary relevance. Friday, October 10th Benoit Castelnerac gave a paper on Plato (followed that evening by a special Jockey club led by Benoit and Mathieu)

Mathieu Marion answering a question from Markus Enders, our visitor from Freiburg courtesy of the Humboldt Foundation

