Loretta Ross has been a practicing lawyer for over 20 years and has served as legal counsel to many First Nations governments and organizations. She obtained her law degree from Queens University. Loretta is a member of the Hollow Water First Nation (Ojibway), a mother of four and a kokum. Loretta has served on various Boards including the Manitoba Human Rights Commission and she recently became the new Treaty Commissioner.

Commissioner Ross will talk about the contemporary relevance of the Treaties signed between the Indigenous and non-Indigenous populations of Canada, and specifically how these treaties can play an important role in the reconciliation process currently underway.

Thursday, September 27
2:00 – 3:30 pm
Junior Common Room, R. Gushue Hall
Light refreshments to follow

Sponsored by the Departments of Gender Studies and Political Science