

SUBWAY/VOCM COATS FOR KIDS CAMPAIGN 2009

The school of social work has partnered once again with Coats for Kids. Many exciting events have been going on with this campaign and the school of social work has been proud to be involved. Social work students and pre-social work students have been actively volunteering at the Coats for Kids Depot, distributing useable coats and winter wear to children in need.

This year has been a particularly exciting year as there have been a number of new supporters of the campaign. Metrobus has provided the opportunity for a travelling depot that allowed us to fill a bus with winter items and visit areas of this city that may have families and children that do not have access to the free depot. Families can come on board the bus and take what they need free of charge. As well, Empire Theatres showed the Christmas movie, ELF, on November 22nd and admission was a donation to Coats for Kids; the response was overwhelming and many coats were collected at this event.

Social Work Student with Staff of Empire Theatres and donations collected at the movie event.