

LIVING MEMORIAL SPEAKER SERIES

First World War Artifacts: An Archival Perspective

The Archives and Special Collections Division of the Queen Elizabeth II Library maintains and provides access to a wide range of archival and special collections material. The lecture will show how Archives and Special Collections, with help from Memorial's WW100 Committee processed, documented and preserved these materials for accessibility to any Internet user via the library's website and digital archive.

Tuesday, Feb. 27, 2018

7:30 - 9p.m.

IIC2001 Lecture Theatre, Bruneau Centre for Research and Innovation

*THIS EVENT IS FREE AND OPEN TO THE PUBLIC
FREE PARKING IS AVAILABLE IN LOT 1A*

David Mercer works at Memorial University Libraries where he provides expertise in geographic information systems software, map production and map reference in the library's map room. He also processes and describes archival material for the Archives and Special Collections Division. Mr. Mercer is a member of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment Advisory Council and volunteers on its museum committee. He holds a master of science degree in geography from Memorial.

THIS IS THE FIRST LECTURE OF THE LIVING MEMORIAL SPEAKER SERIES PRESENTED BY THE PRESIDENT'S WW100 STEERING COMMITTEE. THIS MONTHLY LECTURE SERIES WILL FEATURE PROJECTS FUNDED BY MEMORIAL UNIVERSITY'S WW100 PROGRAM, WHICH WAS ESTABLISHED TO RECOGNIZE THE UNIQUE ORIGIN OF THE UNIVERSITY AS A LIVING MEMORIAL.

FOR MORE INFORMATION PLEASE CONTACT:

Douglas Ballam, WW100 Events Coordinator
dballam@mun.ca 864-3960

www.mun.ca/ww100

