

When Worlds Meet...

A multidisciplinary graduate seminar
Fall Term 2016

Directed by Mario Blaser
For syllabus and more information
mblaser@mun.ca

The persistent reader will find themselves liberated with ideas that will extend far beyond their academic pursuits.

Dustin Riley, Archaeology

'When Worlds Meet' profoundly shaped my graduate experience ...
It was invaluable in 'shaking up' my thinking around Indigeneity and cross-cultural politics.

Jen Daniels, Geography

This class with its interdisciplinary group, challenging readings and stimulating class discussions pulled away the cobwebs of many stale assumptions underlying what I thought I knew.

Camille Fouilliard, Education

When Worlds Meet is a fabulous course but also a dangerous one. Dangerous because it makes you question everything you thought you knew about the world and ways we study it.

Bui Petersen, Business

This course will change the way you think about the possibilities of intellectual exploration. ...Be prepared: your mind will be turned inside-out.

Claire Poirier, Aboriginal Studies