

Alison Coffin is currently a researcher with the Leslie Harris Centre of Regional Policy and Development. She has also been an instructor with the Economics Department at Memorial since 1997. Prior to working with the Harris Centre, Alison worked with the Provincial Government in various capacities including with the Departments of Human Resources, Labour and Employment, Education, and Environment and Labour. Her areas of interest and experience include public policy, labour market economics, indicator development, strategic planning, education, and facilitation.