Introduction

The Great Northern Peninsula Community Place Corporation and Heritage NL have been working together to make a list of people with traditional skills and know-how in the Tri-Town (Hawkes Bay, Port Saunders, and Port au Choix) area.

One of our greatest resources in the Tri Town region is the knowledge and skills of the people who live here. This survey of tradition bearers has been compiled to serve as a local resource, to showcase people who have valuable skills and knowledge. From knitters and quilt-makers to net makers and woodworkers, the region is full of people who know their stuff and who want to share!

“Every year, there seems to be fewer people who know how to make traditional crafts,” says folklorist Dale Jarvis, Heritage NL’s Executive Director. “This is an exciting local project that we are happy to support, to see who is still in the area with the knowledge of how to make the tools, objects, and crafts of yesteryear.”

The project is the idea of the new GNP Community Place, a community centre located on the main street of Port au Choix NL, set up to help build on community strengths and assets. Overlooking the harbour, this community heritage building will offer a safe, accessible place for people from all over the Great Northern Peninsula to gather to participate in inter-generational health and wellness initiatives.

Local researcher Destiny Penney was hired to interview local crafters and seniors, and to compile a list of people in the region willing to share their skills.

What is Intangible Cultural Heritage?

Intangible Cultural Heritage (ICH) or what some call “Living Heritage” encompasses many traditions, practices and customs. These include the stories we tell, the family events we celebrate, our community gatherings, the languages we speak, the songs we sing, knowledge of our natural spaces, our healing traditions, the foods we eat, our holidays, beliefs and cultural practices. Specific examples of our intangible traditions include - among many other customs, skills and practices - the Christmas mummering or janneying traditions, and local boat building skills. ICH can also include Indigenous languages and cultural knowledge, our various regional dialects, and the expressive culture, values and beliefs of the diverse cultural groups of Newfoundland and Labrador.

Many of us play music or tell stories; some of us know about fishing grounds or berrypicking spots; others know about curing illnesses; some of us play cards or make snowshoes. Our communities value these everyday traditions, which are learned by doing. They are passed along not only over time from generation to generation, but also shared between groups across space.
The GNP Community Place
Project Description

The GNP Community Place is a community centre located on the main street of Port au Choix NL. Overlooking the harbour, this community heritage building will offer a safe, accessible place for people from all over the Great Northern Peninsula to gather to participate in inter-generational health and wellness initiatives. It is run by a volunteer not-for-profit community corporation and operates as a social enterprise, offering space for programs to benefit the community while generating revenues to offset operating expenses. It will include the following:

- a community kitchen to increase access to healthy food through education, cooking classes, and food security initiatives;
- a community café/meeting room which will provide a flexible space for meetings and workshops; and serve as a “place” for the community to gather to engage in health and wellness activities, share knowledge of crafts and skills, and participate in programs that enhance community well-being and social inclusion;
- a fitness centre for development of individualized and group exercise programs;
- flexible office spaces/treatment rooms available for rent to researchers, visiting professionals and health practitioners.

The Community Place will also have a small apartment for visiting professionals and researchers.

This project has been incubated with the support and expertise of the Bonne Bay Cottage Hospital Heritage Corporation (BBCHHC) which has operated as a social enterprise for over 20 years in Norris Point. The GNP Community Place project offers a strategic investment opportunity to help strengthen the economies of communities in the region by providing services to help maintain a healthy population and a healthy workforce. It has already attracted investment and support from the Town of Port au Choix and the community itself, as well as federal and provincial government support for research. and development. It will provide practical supports to help people maintain their health status and age in place in their communities on the GNP. Through the provision of flexible multi-use spaces, this project offers a Social Enterprise solution to improve access to programs and services for communities on the rugged coast of the Great Northern Peninsula of Newfoundland. The GNP Community Place will help to support a strong workforce, enable seniors to age in place, create sustainable employment opportunities, enhance our community capacity to overcome economic development challenges in the post-Covid recovery period, and build on our strengths and assets.

This project is based on best practice evidence and is supported by the involvement of the Great Northern Peninsula Research Collective, which will help us to gather data to show the economic, health and social benefits. It addresses issues identified in Dame Moya Greene’s “The Big Reset” report as well as the interim report of the NL Health Accord. It addresses issues related to recovery from the Covid-19 pandemic.
