BIO: I am originally from Labrador but have lived in St. John's for almost ten years, so I consider myself both a Newfoundlander and Labradorian. An NLER!

I did a BA in Literary Studies at the University of Toronto and then pursued an interest in journalism and film.

Research interests: The fishery, globalization and work, common-pool resources, property theory, the politics of knowledge.

Future plans: PhD.

"The MPhil program gives you the scope to consider all your interests and then focus on a particular area. The interdisciplinary approach reveals how common themes intersect across disciplines."
