ABSTRACT: I was visiting my family in Poland for an extensive periods of time those past 3 years in the summer. During those visits I was able to photograph Poznan, my home town. I was inspired by all the changes which happened there during all those years when I was in Canada. I was asked to make a presentation of my images for local photography club (camera35) about a month ago. I thought that it might be a good idea to show them to my friends and coworkers in the physics department as well. I will show you the region where I spent most of my childhood, take you for a walk around some Adam Mickiewicz University buildings to end with a series of pictures taken last year during a photo walk with my friend from high school which took place in the oldest part of town. I will attempt to provide the audience with some relevant historical facts about regions shown on the pictures as well as anecdotes from my personal life.

ALL ARE WELCOME!!!
