Applications are invited from qualified individuals who are interested in being considered for a position as a per course instructor teaching Psychology 3820, Research Techniques in Behavioural Neuroscience in Fall semester 2020 on the St. John's campus. The course is scheduled for Slot 23, T R 12.30-13.45, although this may change. The Calendar description is:

3820, Research Techniques in Behavioural Neuroscience allows students to increase their understanding of how knowledge is generated in the study of neuroscience and behavior. Students will experience laboratories that are engaged in research relevant to these fields. In addition to observations and hands-on tutorials, readings, discussions, and writing assignments will strengthen students' understanding of the techniques used to answer specific research questions in neuroscience and behaviour.

Required qualifications: (1) A demonstrated knowledge of behavioural neuroscience and of the specific topics noted in the course description; (2) an M.Sc. in psychology; and (3) demonstrated experience conducting research at the Masters level in this area are required. Preference will be given first to applicants who have previously taught Psychology 3820 on the St. John's campus, and secondarily to applicants who have previous experience teaching the equivalent of Psychology 3820 elsewhere.

Applicants should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching, and the names of three references in electronic form to: psychsecretary@mun.ca

If electronic submission is not possible, applicants may send the information to:

Head, Department of Psychology
Memorial University of Newfoundland
St. John's, NL
A1B 3X9

The deadline for receipt of complete applications is 4:00 PM, 24 July, 2020.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. Memorial University is committed to employment equity and encourages applications from qualified women and men, visible minorities, aboriginal people and persons with disabilities
