Applications are invited from qualified individuals who are interested in being considered for a position as a per course instructor teaching Psychology 6055 Developmental Psychology I in Winter semester 2019 on the St. John's campus. The course meeting time is still to be scheduled.

The content of this course provides selected coverage of theory, research, and applications of the basic processes that underlie and guide human development from birth to adolescence. Topics include the development and change over time in biological processes, brain functioning, attention, learning, memory and cognition, and language. The roles of nature and nurture and the interactions between them are underlying themes throughout each topic.

Required qualifications: (1) A demonstrated knowledge of child psychology and of the specific topics noted in the course description; (2) an M.Sc. in psychology; and (3) demonstrated experience conducting research in this area at the Masters (or equivalent) level are required. Preference will be given first to applicants who have previously taught Psychology 6500 on the St. John's campus, and secondarily to applicants who have previous experience teaching the equivalent of Psychology 6500 elsewhere.

Applicants should send a letter of application, curriculum vitae, evidence of effective teaching, and the names of three references in electronic form to: Psychsecretary@mun.ca

If electronic submission is not possible, applicants may send the information to:

Head, Department of Psychology
Memorial University of Newfoundland
St. John's, NL
A1B 3X9

The deadline for receipt of complete applications is 4:00 PM, 9 November, 2018.

All qualified candidates are encouraged to apply; however, Canadian citizens and permanent residents will be given priority. Memorial University is committed to employment equity and encourages applications from qualified women and men, visible minorities, aboriginal people and persons with disabilities
