- funds are available
- they have followed the application procedure
- and they are presenting a paper/poster at a conference, or they are receiving conference aid from the Dean of their faculty and/or the Dean of Graduate Studies.

While assistance is available only after the conference is completed, students should apply for aid a minimum of 4 weeks before travel begins.

The maximum amount of conference funding available for any graduate student is $250 per programme. However, a student may opt to split this amount over several conferences, rather than applying for the entire sum for a single conference. Thus, conference funding may be available more than once during a graduate program.
