

Ethics Scenario # 2

Free and maintained consent of the participant

ANSWER

No, this would be an unethical way of obtaining volunteers. In this instance it would be wise to have a meeting with supervisors and employees of the area to reiterate the objectives of the project and perhaps offer additional information about what will be done to ensure employees understand the need for volunteers.